The Stranger's subscription policy does not allow for complimentary subscriptions or complimentary copies of the papers to DOC residents. However, provided that the below-listed guidelines are adhered to, The Stranger is able to set up paid subscriptions to DOC residents.

Our experience finds that if the DOC resident is not him/herself able to start a paid subscription, having the help of a family member or friend to start the subscription is an effective means of acquiring one.

We do offer subscriptions to inmates, and there are quite a handful who subscribe, and we're happy to have 'em as part of our readership.

If you wish to order a subscription for an inmate, please be advised of the following:

Check with the inmate or the department of corrections to be sure that the inmate does not have a periodicals restriction. Especially if the inmate's conviction has anything to do with anything sexual.

Subscription payments, even for inmates, are not refundable. I say 'even for inmates', because during a subscription period, inmates may have their periodical privileges revoked, may run amok of rules such as trying to place personal ads in our paper, etc. These type of situations do not constitute grounds for a refund.

Money orders are the only way an inmate can pay for a subscription. If you (a non-inmate) wish to purchase the subscription, check and credit are ok.

Please be sure that the inmate's mailing address is exactly exact. Any imprecision in the inmate's mailing address can render our paper undeliverable.

If an inmate is moved, changing the address is easy. Just contact us by mail, phone or email. Any issues missed because of slow prison mail will be added on to the subscription.

If you need any further information, just drop me a line.

Good Luck!
